Circuit court will begin next Monday with many new appearances on the docket. Much of this litigation that will consume the time of the court is of a character that is by on means creditable to the litigantsor the attorneys engaged. Circuit court is in session sixteen weeks every year in Hopkinsville and at least half of this time is taken up with trying and retrying alleged damage suits with no meet in them, in divorcing husbands and wives, in settling disputes between neighbors over line fences or in making settlements between land worses and their teanats. There is too much litigation of this sort, but it makes Christian county a paradise for lawyers who take such cases.

Col. Chas. D. Jacob

There are upon our books a number of subscribers who, while insisting that they do not want the paper stopped, have fuiled to pay for several years. We have tried to be idealigerat, but must now take steps to get closer it to the cash system. After this issue we shall drop from our lists these definitions and take steps to close up this unsettled business. It is purely a matter of business. While it painful to cease to oblige our friends, we cannot run a paper in these hard times without money and all who have not made an effort to pay will be treated alike. If your paper is stopped suddenly it will be because we cannot send it any longer on credit.

THE ISLAND OF CORFU. Its Inhabitants Are Lazy and Rese ble the Ancient Greeks.

Corfu and Crete are said by a recent writer to be the most beautiful of the Ionian islands, and the former has been described by Bishop Wordsworth as "a sort of geographical mosaic to twhich all the countries of Europe have contributed colors." Corfu was never conquered by the Turks and its inhabitants are considered to bear a strong resemblance to the ancient Greeks. It has belonged at different times to the Remans, Venetians, Neapolitans, French and English. In 1863, when Prince George of Denmark, was chosen by the powers for king of Greece, the Corfucts petitioned that their island might be incorporated in the kingdom of Greece

A Corfu olive tree left to tis own devices will frequently yield as much as two gallons of oil cach season, with no more labor involved than a simple gathering and pressing of the faller fruit.

Corfu is the favorite place of residence of Empress Elizabeth of Austria, who has built there a winter palace which she calls the Villa Achilleon. It is rumored that the non-unlerable spot ever discovered in the heart of the empress. Several million dollars have been spent in beautifying the palace and surrounding park, and an ideal spot is the result. A most beautiful and artistic RELLS OF ALL COUNTRIES. Tokens of Joy and Sorrow-popular in Orient.

Tokens of days and sorrow—Are Unpapels in Orient.

In this country, says the London Daily Mail, bells are and always have been intimately associated with national as well as individual joy and sorrow. When a great victory is won the bells crash forth the glad itidings from a thousand steeples, while they perform a like office, though, of course, in a different key, in case of mational disaster. Bells in England, however, have not become, as in some other countries, hoary with ages of superatition.

But Spain has a bell that is its prophet. It is its sootheaver, oracle and guide. This bell, the famous Villela, has hung for centuries in the historical castle, keeping watch over the nation.

and guide. This bell, the famous Villela, has hung for centuries in the historical castle, keeping watch over the nation.

It is the most celebrated bell in Europe. It is fine rests not so much on its notes, though they are highpitched, soft and clear, nor upon its size, for there are other bells in Spain much larger, but upon its personality. The Villela is a Spanish bell that for years has foretold any impending trouble to the nation. When the fatter years has foretold any impending trouble to the nation. When the fatter years has foretold any impending trouble to the nation. When the fatter years are the villela began tolling in the night and tiled until morning light. In the tenyears Cuban war the bell strack awful tones on the nights of defeat. And when great fires have touched the castle and sickness or insurrection threatened the throne, the Villela has lifted up its voice.

The Villela has tolled again, and only a fortright ago. It was one short, quick stroke. Only a few heard it, but they ran to tell the direful tidings. Did it mean more disaster in Cuba? Was the war to drain the royal vaults beyond penury to debt? The Villela would not tell, but it sent out its warning note.

Russia has a coronation bell, the largest in the world, and weighing 250,000 pounds.

It hangs in the Kremlin, and is the emperor's bell, being rung only in honor of him. At the coronation it pealed forth as the emperor entered the conclusion of the ceremony to the whole of Russia. The coronation bell is wrung by a bell-ringer blessed by the emperor as the head of the church. The bell-ringer does no other work, and is always on duty to tell of imposing the bell in case of need. He rings the bell when his majesty goes.

other work, and is always on duty to tell of important events in the imperial family.

He is pensioned, and is ever polishing up the bell in case of need. He rings the bell when his majesty goes to church and in ease of the death of a Russian monarch. The Kremlin bell tolls constantly between the death and time of the funeral.

As is well known, to Russia bellongs the largest unrung bell in the world. This bell now occupies a building in the Kremlin. It was east two centuries ago, but was found too heavy to remove from the pit. The Russian monarch, so on after auchter, the state of t being steamed and server up to moof the great bondon stables; and the only domestic creature whose tendency to enlarge its food-range in discouraged is the pig, not because it is bad for the animal, but because we desire by limiting its choice of food to extend our own. For our own purposes we have induced the dog to become largely a vegetable feeder, greatly to the advantage of its health in confinement, and by the substitution of the uniform "dog biscuit" for table scraps of meat have given him a mixture of meal and dates, which is as agreeable to crack as a bone. Among the more highly organized creatures "single-food" animals are scarce and growing scarcer. There is evidence that the mute swan once fed almost entirely on sub-aquating grasses. At Abbotsbury, when the ice destroyed the grass growing at the bottom of the lagoon, the half-wild swans refused to touch any other food, and starved in hundreds. Now they have learned to eat grain just as the Thames swans have learned to eat bread and the grain which falls from larges. Probably the Abbotsbury swans were the last of their species in Logland which were animals, and with their conversion the extension of the range of diet is completed.

Reindeer, deed almost entirely on

extension of the range of diet is completed.

Reindeer feed almost entirely on mosses and bichen. It is still matter for doubt whether they can be achimated in this country, though experiments are being made to that end, if they cannot, an extension of the species, even though in domestication, will be prevented by their limited food range. The moose feeds entirely on the beard and twigs of trees. But this is partly due to the height of its forelogs and the shortness of its meek, which makes it almost impossible for it to graze. When fed from a manger the moose takes readily to ordinary eattle food. Seals were long considered to live whelly on fish. The supply is so varies as well as abundant, and the seals so active, that it might be thought that there was little to induce them to seek a change. Xet Mr.

be thought that there was little to induce them to seek a change. Yet Mr. Trevor-Battye when on Kolguev watched a seal catching ducks, with such persistence and success that there can be little doubt that the seal has extended its dietary from fish to fow! Instances of the converse are the great fishing owls, which, being provided with an equipment equally suited for killing birds and small animals, are by preference catchers of fish.

Instances of carnivora devolutions of a concurrent taste for vegetable food a concurrent taste for vegetable food a concurrent taste for vegetable food in the season of the seaso pigeon, which has been noticed after rain to eat carth worms on lawns as eagerly as a thrush. This addition to its usual food is probably due to the absence in the diet generally given to the birds of some element which pig cons find in the mixed seeds and leave which they eat when wild.—London Spectator.

A Day's Journey.

A Day's Journey.

"Aday's journey," as the expression is used in the Scriptures, means from ten to twenty miles. The "Sabbath's day journey," frequently mentioned in the Bible, was 2,000 paces, or about three-quarters of a mile. The Jews were forbidden to travel further than this distance on their Sabbath, but often evaded the prohibition by taking a small quantity of food and burying it in the ground at the required distance thom their homes, whereby this pot became technically a habitation, and they could proceed from it another Sabbath's day journey on their way.
